A Lively Platform with Tips for the Dental Laboratory

New blog provides exciting information for dental technicians

The new Dental Technician Blog from Ivoclar Vivadent offers a lively platform with exciting and helpful information on topics which are of interest to dental technicians in their work.

The main focus of the blog is the readers' benefit - both for daily work as well as fundamental questions, for example good laboratory strategies. Fascinatingly presented and with a wide variety of topics, the contributions are supplemented on a weekly basis. The information, tips and tricks included are from the areas

- laboratory management and strategies,
- industry trends (e.g. digital dental technology),
- specific user questions and
- information on new products

A practical search function makes it easier to find specific keywords such as esthetics or efficiency. In addition, many blog contributions include information (e.g. downloads of scientific publications or illustrative user videos). The blog is available online in five languages (English, German, French, Italian, Spanish).

Interactive information

Comments and suggestions to the individual contributions are welcome. In addition, interested readers can subscribe to the free blog newsletter. These subscribers will always be informed as soon as a new post is available.
